At the Belize Ag Report, we have always considered gate prices to the farmer to be the heart of the paper. Special thanks to the persons assisting with pricing information, and especially to Banana Bank's John Carr who did all of our pricing pages until this issue. Prices look encouraging almost across the board. Cattle have taken a slight dip from the alltime high reported in issue #22; With the scarcity and demand in our neighboring countries, this will climb again. Sheep, pigs and chickens are steady. Corn has followed the dip in N. America, but there is confidence it will be higher for the 2014 crop. Heavy rains arrived in Cayo District just as the final corn harvests were being done - estimated $95 \%$ were safely in before the pelting rains of late October. RK and black eye planting time is almost here. Soy, rice and sorghum (milo) are doing well; acreages for all grains are increasing. Citrus continues to face challenges; final orange prices were higher than estimated year's box price, and grapefruit was slightly under. Producers, advertisers, writers and readers: Thank you for your support and interest in our publication. We send you all joyous and productive wishes for the winter. Beth Roberson
